SOME LINKS RELATED TO PREGNANT TWINS:

Twin pregnancy reveals the hidden recesses of our bodies - ScienceDaily, 6/7/13 - "The body's ability to create identical twins occurs only in the event of very close genetic similarity between the parent and fetus. Although some people are born with one or more identical twins, many cases are due to a deep desire for twins on the part of the mother, which she cannot satisfy without medical intervention. These situations can lead to feelings of anxiety and guilt on the part of the mother and to difficult relations between siblings, especially if the twins cannot be conjoined." - See twin pregnancy. Belly size makes no difference in birthing technique for identical, same-sex twins - Science Daily, 3/13/12 - "black women were one and a half times as likely as white women to have fraternal twins (33 per cent versus 21 per cent respectively). Identical twins occur when two fertilised eggs fuse together ... For this study, calculations were based on all same-sex twin births, including those with different sex combinations. The analysis included data from 1984 up until 2010. From one to four, the number of twins at birth is rising - Science Daily, 3/6/12 - "The proportion of multiple births in twin births increased gradually throughout the study period. The fraternal twin rate increased from 11.3% in 1984 to 20.0% in 2010. The rates for identical twins remained fairly stable until 2000 when the rate increased from 0.8% in 1984 to 3.3% in 2010." Conjoined Twins: One Baby, Two Souls - ABC News, 12/4/11 - "Sasha and Maliyah were born conjoined at their abdomen on Sept. 1 at Miami's Holtz Children's Hospital. They are joining their respective halves together in a procedure known as Oliver Twist syndrome, when the organs are joined by the mesentery, the tissue that connects internal organs to the rest of the body ... Conjoined twins can occur at any point during pregnancy. The condition is usually very rare, but because of advances in technology, doctors have been able to detect it earlier in pregnancy." Conjoined Twins - Science Daily, 9/12/11 - "conjoined twins arise when two embryos fuse together during early development. Conjoined twins occur in about 1 or 2 out of every 100,000 live births. Maliyah and Sasha are joined at their abdomen. The children are being monitored throughout the hospitalization.
